What did you actually think?

Two weeks with HSFocus or TsugiHS. Blunt answers are the useful ones — a polite answer tells me nothing I can act on.

You can type straight into this form and email it back, or print it and write on it. Nothing is submitted and there is no server behind it.

> Please do not write any of this on here
> Nothing about a patient. No names, no numbers, no cases, not even an anonymised one. I only want to know about the app.
> You do not need to put your own name on this either. Nothing here is kept in any system — it comes back to one person by email or on paper.

WHICH ONE, AND ON WHAT

1. Which app did you try?

☐ TsugiHS — the internship planner ☐ HSFocus — the study timer ☐ Both

2. On what phone or computer?

Make and model, and the Android or iOS version if you know it.

3. Did you get it onto your home screen?

☐ Yes, easily ☐ Yes, but it took working out ☐ No ☐ Did not try

If it went wrong, where exactly?

THE TWO QUESTIONS THAT MATTER MOST

4. What did you try to do that it would not let you do?

Anything you looked for and could not find counts. So does anything that needed more taps than it should have.

5. Did you open it again the next day? And the day after?

☐ Used it most days ☐ On and off ☐ Opened it once or twice ☐ Stopped

If you stopped — what stopped you? This is the single most useful answer on the sheet, so please do not soften it.

TsugiHS is not an official logbook and is not connected to any college, the NMC or any register. Neither app gives medical advice. The name TsugiHS is provisional.

USING IT

6. What did you open it for most?

The screen you actually went to, not the one you think you should have.

7. Did you back it up?

☐ Yes ☐ No

If no — did you not get round to it, not find it, or not see why it mattered? There is no server, so a backup is the only copy that exists.

8. Was anything confusing — a word, a button, a screen?

9. Android only, and it is a real favour

Start a 25 minute timer. Lock the phone, put it in your pocket, leave it alone.

Did it chime when the time was up?

☐ Yes, on time ☐ Yes, but late ☐ No sound ☐ Only when I unlocked it

Phone and Android version: _____

Nobody has ever tested that. It is the one answer here that decides what gets built next.

LAST TWO

10. Would you still be using this in a month?

☐ Yes ☐ Probably ☐ Probably not ☐ No

Why?

11. Anything else.

Including “I did not like it” and “I forgot about it”. Both are more use to me than a compliment.

That is the lot — thank you

Save this file and email it to support@ilanbk.ai, or print it and hand it back. There is nothing to submit and nothing here reaches a server.

If you keep using the app: back it up every week. I cannot restore anybody's data, because I have never had a copy of it. That is on purpose, and it is the trade for nobody being able to read it either.
